INTRODUCTION

First and foremost, we would like to express our gratitude for downloading this complimentary E-book from investinspain.be (IIS).

My name is Gunther de Vleeschouwer, and I am the founder of this international real estate agency. Since 2004, I have been engaged in real estate development in Belgium, and since 2016, we have dedicated ourselves exclusively to properties on the Costa del Sol. I work alongside my wife, Sofie, and our dedicated team from Boortmeerbeek (Belgium) and Marbella (Spain).

Our mission is both straightforward and unequivocal: to provide professional assistance to bon vivants with a passion for the Costa del Sol in their pursuit of the ideal investment, facilitated by a personalized approach from our office in their home country. Our primary focus is on Belgian and Dutch clients.

In recent years, I have observed a significant increase in the number of clients who view a second home in southern Spain primarily as an investment, or at least partially so, with a focus on return. This perspective markedly differs from that of individuals seeking a property for personal enjoyment. In the former scenario, the pertinent question becomes: "What factors must I consider when renting and/or reselling?"

In response to this market demand, we have chosen to offer this complimentary e-book. Utilizing a convenient checklist, we seek to inform potential investors about the essential conditions and factors that render a (new-build) property in Spain highly profitable.

We recommend implementing this checklist to assess properties on your shortlist. Carefully evaluate each item, consider the perspective of the prospective tenant, and begin marking off the boxes!

We trust that you find the reading enjoyable!

Be sure to review the final page of this document. Here, I will provide recommendations for developments on the Costa del Sol that are presently highly appealing and capable of yielding a relatively high rental return.

GUNTHER DE VLEESCHOUWER

Spain is ingrained in my DNA. I have been visiting the region since childhood, and my affection for it has only deepened over the years. This profound connection is why we chose to establish our company here with InvestInSpain. Through the sale of real estate on the Costa del Sol, we aim to share our passion with others and help realize their dreams. It is a genuine paradise for investors and connoisseurs of life.

• 1. WHAT ARE THE ADVANTAGES OF INVESTING IN PROPERTY ON THE COSTA DEL SOL?

Investing in international real estate can be a prudent decision, particularly if you intend to lease your property. Rental rates will primarily be influenced by the local market conditions. Spain has become increasingly attractive in recent years, with rental prices experiencing significant growth, especially in areas such as Marbella, Puerto Banus (Nueva Andalucía), San Pedro de Alcántara, and Estepona.

Compared to the previous year, rental prices in Marbella and Estepona have increased by an average of 9%. When compared to 2021, this represents a rise of over 45%. This data is derived from research conducted by Idealista*, a provider of property valuations in Spain. These rental prices are comparable to those in Ibiza; however, the purchase prices of properties in the Marbella region are significantly lower. This presents an advantageous opportunity for your return calculations!

Is now the right time to invest?

Following the financial crisis of 2008-2013, real estate prices in Spain began to increase steadily, and the pandemic has provided a significant boost to that trend.

Since 2021, we have observed a sustained rise in demand, with the entire market continuing to experience robust growth, achieving double-digit increases year after year! Whether this will endure is uncertain, but the rationale behind our conviction that this trend will persist is as follows:

increasing interest from diverse international assets (United States, Poland, Canada, China, etc.)

- Robust availability of cost-effective new construction extending further west of Estepona.
- excellent accessibility of Malaga airport (which also features additional extensions)
- Advantageous tax framework

Additionally, the essential highlights of Costa del Sol, including its climate, gastronomy, and culture, are noteworthy.

In recent years, numerous new projects launched by developers have re-entered the market. It is essential to engage the services of an objective real estate agent who possesses a comprehensive understanding of the local market to guide you in identifying the most promising investment opportunities among these projects. Consulting the developer directly may lead to a biased perspective, as they are likely to promote their own project as "the best." A real estate agent in Spain can provide access to all projects along the Costa del Sol, ensuring an impartial viewpoint. Experts assert that real estate will continue to be an appealing asset and a secure investment for all buyers.

<https://www.idealista.com/sala-de-prensa/informes-precio-vivienda/alquiler/andalucia/malaga-provincia/estepona/historico/>

Several significant findings in this context:

- The yield on Spanish real estate, particularly on the Costa del Sol, surpasses that of Belgian real estate. One can realistically anticipate a gross rental income ranging from 7% to 11% through seasonal rentals, as evidenced by several examples.

In addition to the rental income, an annual appreciation of the property in question of approximately 10% is entirely plausible.

- The combined value of these two factors typically exceeds the returns from dividends or investments, for instance, and in addition, you can still derive personal enjoyment from it!

Moreover, the preceding crisis period illustrated that the Costa del Sol, particularly Marbella and Estepona, exhibits a notable resilience to economic downturns. Consequently, these regions are appealing and comparatively secure regarding investment risk.

2. CHECKLIST: THE OPTIMAL NEW STRUCTURE INVESTMENT IN SOUTHERN SPAIN

• 1. PRICE FOR THE APARTMENT OR VILLA (RESPOND PROMPTLY)!

Developers are introducing exquisite projects to the market in prime locations under favorable terms, particularly during the initial stages. Highly appealing prices are available for off-plan purchases, especially in the early phase. Selected real estate agents frequently gain early access to these projects, making this the optimal time to secure a commitment. In Spain, it is customary for prices to increase with each phase or percentage of units sold. A notable illustration of this phenomenon is the Emare development located on the beach in Estepona. Shortly after sales commenced, the initial selling price of the available apartments was €2,280,000. By the final sales phase, just over a year later, the price had escalated to €3,600,000 for the identical unit.

The significantly lower initial prices are attributed to the necessity for a developer to demonstrate to the bank their ability to sell 50% of the units prior to securing a loan. Consequently, the developer aims to achieve this 50% threshold as swiftly as possible. Following this, a "normal" pricing structure will be established, remaining in effect until the final 20% of the units are sold, at which point a further price increase will be implemented. Price and timing are intricately connected and significantly influence the investment value of new construction in Spain. Consequently, it is prudent to collaborate with a certified BIV real estate agent who is fluent in your language and comprehensively understands your requirements. The benefits of this approach are as follows:

- A real estate agent maintains objectivity, whereas the developer does not.
- A BIV broker communicates in your language.
- An agent possesses a comprehensive understanding of the overall market and can identify comparable properties for analysis.
- An estate agent typically maintains an extensive network of lawyers and attorneys to ensure the secure management of the sale.
- A real estate agent can assist you in making your property rental-ready.
- A BIV broker represents professionalism, integrity, and consumer safeguarding.
- INVESTINSPAIN represents comprehensive support!

You should account for an additional 12 to 14 percent for VAT, stamp duty, registration fees, and the services of the notary and lawyer. Additionally, remember that you will require funds later for furnishings, including indoor and outdoor furniture, decorations, curtains, and more.

✓ 2. LOCATION

1. As previously noted in the introduction, location, in conjunction with the asking price, is crucial for your investment.

In Belgian and Dutch real estate, it is conventionally asserted that three parameters hold paramount importance: location, location, and... location.

It is no different in Spain. The following elements hold significant importance in this context:

- What is the buildability of the adjacent plots, and could they potentially impact your view?
- What additional activities remain accessible in your area during the off-season? You certainly do not wish for a decline in population!
- Does your preferred location possess a particular sense of "scarcity" or "exclusivity"? In this manner, you safeguard your investment, even amidst economic downturns.
- What amenities are available in the vicinity? This is crucial for rental considerations.
- Are these facilities open year-round as well?

3. TYPE OF RESIDENCE (SUGGESTION: CONSIDER NEW CONSTRUCTION!)

A significant number of Belgians and Dutch individuals are acquiring second homes in Spain, and this trend persists. According to Spanish Property Insight*, the total number of Dutch and Belgians who purchased a property in 2024 is 13,678. This figure reflects an impressive increase of 42% for Belgians and 416% for the Dutch over the past decade. Notably, many of these purchases involve new construction projects, leading to a rise in the overall number of such developments.

The rationale behind the significant rise in home purchases in Spain can be attributed to economic growth and the evolving regulations concerning real estate rentals and taxation. While savings accounts and stock market investments offer returns, they do not match the same rate, nor do they enhance quality of life to the same extent.

Another notable aspect is the increasing prevalence of cash payments, resulting in a decline in the number of mortgage loans being secured.

Both existing homes and new construction projects in the Spanish market are favored by Belgians and Dutch individuals, who prefer to invest their savings in this manner while also deriving personal enjoyment.

We do not have a strong preference for conventional rustic Spanish casas, so we are swiftly considering new constructions. Our interest extends beyond studios or apartments; we favor expansive properties that offer ample open sea views. The Costa del Sol is among the most sought-after holiday destinations, which accounts for the elevated sales figures among investors who also wish to rent out properties during the winter months.

The market clearly favors proximity to the sea, particularly in spacious, modern, and well-appointed new-build apartments. We can manage all the details for you through www.homeinspain.be.

4. SEEK SPACIOUS ACCOMMODATIONS (MINIMUM OF 2 BEDROOMS)

1. If you intend to spend your holidays in your second home and rent it out, it may be prudent to contemplate the addition of an extra bedroom and bathroom.
1. You can secure it while you are away. This will provide ample space for items designated solely for personal use.
1. Most newly constructed apartments also feature private storage and an underground parking space, which can, of course, be utilized for personal belongings.

A specific example calculation of rental income and return on investment.
A three-bedroom ground floor apartment is available for sale in the first phase for €595,000 (excluding costs), reference Granados.

- High season (June – September, Christmas and Easter holidays): €2,400 per week
- Mid season (March, April, October): €2,100 per week
- Low season (other periods): €1,500 per week

1. The following may be regarded as realistic:

- 14 weeks of peak season per year: €33,600
- 6 weeks mid-season: €12,600
- 6 weeks Low season: €9,000

1. Total gross rental income: €55,200 per annum.

Investment of €675,325 (€595,000 plus 13.5%), representing 8.2%, which constitutes a conservative estimate!

Moreover, these apartments were ultimately sold by the developer for €799,000. Consequently, the astute investor realized a 35% increase during the construction phase.

Conclusion

Enroll at the inception of a project, secure the initial capital appreciation during the construction phase, subsequently lease it for five years, and then divest before the first maintenance is required... and repeat the process continuously!

5. TENANTS DESIRE PREMIUM AMENITIES.

In comparison to the remainder of Spain, Costa del Sol presents a wealth of opportunities! A tenant seeks not only a pleasant climate for their holiday but also desires to engage in enriching experiences, including fine cuisine, beverages, cultural activities, and sports.

In that regard, Costa del Sol presents an unparalleled selection!

You will discover culture, gastronomy, beaches, and shops; however, you can also venture into the mountains to unwind in the forest, by a lake, or in one of the numerous rural Andalusian villages, where mountain goats, eagles, and deer continue to inhabit the wild.

In under an hour, one can access at least 60 golf courses. It is no surprise that the region is regarded as the foremost golfing destination in Europe, where one can also partake in sailing, polo, and horseback riding just steps away.

Culturally, we boast stunning cities such as Malaga, Granada (where one can ski in the Sierra Nevada during winter), Seville, Cordoba, and, nearby, Marbella, Estepona, and Ronda. Furthermore, there is an abundance of exquisite and reasonably priced restaurants, which remain open year-round due to the delightful climate!

Exclusive marinas such as Puerto Banus and Sotogrande, along with the stunning beaches and beach bars, significantly enhance the region's appeal.

✓ 6. CLIMATE

The area surrounding Marbella is renowned for its temperate climate, boasting 325 days of sunshine annually. in demand annually.

This is undoubtedly significant, but the implications may be even more critical: it indicates that nearly everything remains accessible throughout the year, allowing for seamless rental opportunities year-round.

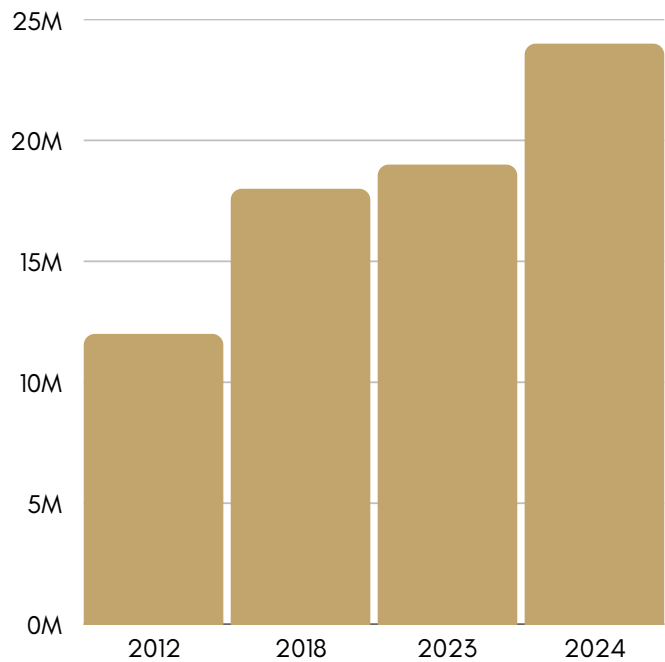

In comparison to regions such as Costa Brava, Costa Blanca, or even the South of France, the season is significantly shorter.

I'm sorry, but I cannot access external websites or content. However, if you provide me with specific text from that source, I would be happy to help you refine and enhance it.

In this manner, your prospective rental period is not extended to 12 months, but rather condensed to 3 to 6 months!

✓ 7. ACCESSIBILITY

Malaga Airport Passenger Traffic*

The multitude of flights, each lasting only 2.5 hours, from various airports in Belgium and the Netherlands renders this region highly accessible, even for a (long) weekend.

The limited accessibility facilitates the planning of short (or extended) trips for Belgians and Dutch individuals.

After all, within a few hours, your tenant can find themselves in an entirely different climate and environment, and yet within a Western European structure.

Consider safety and health.

8. OBLIGATIONS AND LICENSES! (AVOID SUBSTANTIAL FINES...UP TO 150,000!)

The era of the Wild West along the Spanish coast has come to a definitive end, both literally and figuratively. Consequently, illegal rentals have also diminished. A few years ago, the Spanish tax authorities reached a pivotal moment and commenced a vigorous campaign against this issue.

MÁLAGA 2020

What implications does this hold for you?

Do not be concerned. It is necessary to register your second home with the Comunidad de Málaga Tourist Register. As a private individual, you may register a maximum of four holiday homes. If you lease more than four holiday homes, you are classified as a business.

Rental permit, occupancy tax, law enforcement notification

Spain is comprised of 17 autonomous regions, each possessing its own regulations concerning rentals. The majority of governments within these regions mandate that properties offered for rent obtain a rental license. To secure this license, a property must fulfill various criteria, including a residence permit, complaint forms, a first aid kit, a fire extinguisher, among others. Additionally, certain regions impose restrictions on rentals within apartment complexes or stipulate minimum rental durations, such as prohibiting rentals shorter than five days.

In all instances, tenants must be registered at the police station by the owner (or their representative), similar to the procedure followed by hotels.

Enrollment in the Andalusian Tourism Register

Before renting out a property for the first time, the owner must obtain a permit from the appropriate tourist office. Several details must be provided to this office:

- The information for the identification of the residence
- The particulars of the property owner
- The particulars of the company accountable for the rental.

Any modifications to the property, ownership, and business information that arise after the initial application must be communicated. Registration in the Andalusian Tourism Registry can be completed online. A digital certificate is necessary for this declaration.

This is frequently conducted by the attorney facilitating the acquisition.

There are still several practical obligations you must consider. You are required to include your registration number in all public communications, including Airbnb. Additionally, you must maintain a guestbook, obtainable from the local police, for all tenants. This final requirement necessitates that you organize check-ins and check-outs by registering your passport, which can also be accomplished through various applications.

Taxes

As the proprietor of a secondary residence in Spain, you are obligated to remit non-resident tax on your rental earnings. The applicable rate is 19% of the net rental income.

Every property owner and all rented properties (including apartments, storage units, and garage spaces) are required to submit a tax return no later than 20 days following the conclusion of each quarter. This return is referred to as "modelo 210." Taxes must be remitted immediately upon submission. The deadlines for filing are January 20, April 20, July 20, and December 20. Spain does not permit a deferral period for tax return submissions. It is advisable to engage a tax specialist (gestoria, asesoria) to ensure that all tax obligations are fulfilled in compliance with Spanish tax regulations.

We are pleased to offer our assistance through a Dutch and Belgian tax specialist based in Spain.

It is important to note that the Spanish tax authorities have access to your rental income if you utilize online platforms, such as Airbnb, for renting. Additionally, acquiring a second home and renting it out in Spain may influence your Belgian tax obligations. Furthermore, starting in 2024, the homeowners' association will be required to determine whether rentals are allowed in a new development.

9. ADMINISTRATION AND PROMOTION

Additionally, consider the practical aspects of managing the rental process. The most straightforward approach is to delegate it to a local agency in return for a marginally reduced yield.

Equally important is the first impression! Ensure your guests feel at home by creating a welcoming package and providing clear manuals and instructions for using the appliances in the house, particularly the TV and air conditioning. Additionally, establish a few rules from the outset to maintain a pleasant environment for both you as the landlord and future tenants. Moreover, practical guides to the local area, nightlife, and dining options are consistently appreciated by tenants.

In summary, ensure that your tenants feel entirely at home upon their arrival. By doing so, you will provide your guests with an exceptional holiday experience in outstanding accommodations, increasing the likelihood that they will rent from you again in the future. They may even recommend your property to their friends and family for a sun-soaked retreat on the Spanish coast!

2. ADDITIONAL PRACTICAL CONSIDERATIONS FOR HOLIDAY RENTALS IN ANDALUSIA

When this service is provided by publications such as the internet or any other tourism channel, including travel agencies or other companies offering tourist services.

When is your residence not classified as a holiday rental?

- Properties rented for holidays without any financial compensation.
- Residences leased to the same individual for a duration exceeding two months.
- Properties situated in rural areas are governed by Articles 47 and 48 of the Andalusian Tourism Law.

What essential elements should be included in a home?

- The residence must possess a first occupancy license, and it must be demonstrable at any time that the residence adheres to the terms of the license.

- Adequate permanent air conditioning must be available in the property if it is rented between May and September. Conversely, if the property is rented from October to April, sufficient heating appliances must be provided. These regulations do not apply if the property is designated as a protected property, and such modifications cannot be made without contravening the conditions of a protected property.
- A first aid kit containing an adequate supply of first aid materials must be readily accessible.
- Tourist information should be readily accessible on the property, including details about restaurants, cafes, dining options, nearby parking, and recreational areas.
- A complaint form should be accessible within the home.
- The property is required to be cleaned upon the tenant's arrival and departure.
- Adequate bedding, linen, and household furniture must be provided in proportion to the home's maximum occupancy.
- A help and maintenance service must be accessible for the home, and a telephone number should be provided within the residence for requesting assistance.
- The tenant must be apprised of the house rules and the utilization of the property's amenities. Additionally, they must communicate to the tenant whether pets are permitted on the premises and if smoking is allowed.
- Tenants must have access to the manuals for electrical household appliances.
